EVENING MEETING

"QUILTING WITH CHILDREN"
Feb. 12, 1987  Brookdale Library

Teresa Root will be sharing her experience in teaching her 5th grade students how to quilt. She will show one completed quilt and one now in progress. She will also give us some resources for help in teaching our own children quilting.

Teresa has been quilting for 13 years and comes from a generation of quilters. Starting with her great-grandmother to her mother and two sisters, who also quilt.

SHOW N' TELL for February will be special quilts you might have made as a young person or quilts your children have made.

This month we will also have a preview on classes and teachers for our June quilt show.

DAYTIME MEETING

February 13, 10:00 a.m.

Now that you've received your show information for Sentimental Journey, I'm sure you'd like to know a little more about the class offerings before you register. The February daytime meeting will be presented by the Show Committee, and will feature slides of work or class results from the national teachers, and the Minnesota Quilter teachers will bring samples and tell you about their classes. If that doesn't get your juices flowing, just wait until you see the rest of the program!

Afterwards, you can hop on over to the Snowflake Days quilt show at the First Bank of Coon Rapids. Minnesota Quilters is a co-sponsor of the small quilt exhibit.

STEIN'S (pen) STROKES

Happy New Year! I hope it brings lots of time for quilting after the busy holiday season. It surely brings new opportunities to share in the fellowship and enjoyment of quilting as a group. Thank you to the people who said yes to being on the nominating committee—Carol Adelman, Judith Peterson, Betty Flannigan, Lois Gibbs, and Maureen Heaney. Be sure to let them know if you would like to serve on the board—the duties are varied and board meetings are never dull!

An exciting project getting off the ground in the next couple months will be the documentation of historical quilts in Minnesota. It will be a long term project with various talents needed such as interviewers, photographers, writers, researchers, etc. Before anything can be started we need to find out who is interested in working on the committee and deciding how to begin. A meeting of anyone with ideas will be held at the home of Ruth Donhowe, 2135 Knapp St., St. Paul at 7:00 p.m. on February 3. Phone 644-5769 for directions only. If you cannot attend, write down your ideas and willingness to help in the future and forward them to me. We suspect some work has already been done by Minnesota Home Economists and other groups so if you know about other projects along this line please let me know about them.

Other events coming soon are work on the Whisper Minnesota quilts that will decorate the Crystal Court on Mother's Day along with 600 women over the age of 65; Artwear '87 at the Art Institute; the contest connected with the Fall Home Show; the bus trip to the AQS Show in Paducah, Kentucky in April; and our quilt show in June. Quilters are ON THE MOVE!

GENERAL MEETING

Evening Division Meeting
January 8, 1987

Seventy five members and five guests attended the evening division meeting on an unseasonably balmy January night. Show and tell was shared by eight members. Demaris Jackson brought a wonderful machine quilted park scene quilt which is to be in a national show. A machine appliqued child's counting book was shared by Mo Johnson.

Several announcements were made regarding upcoming events. This year's small quilt auction will have two categories and donors will be eligible for door prizes. Dave Shattuck showed us his small quilt on in progress. New lecture series director, Judy Peterson, announced that Doreen Speckman will be the guest speaker for the March lecture series.

For the evening's program, Carol Wagner delighted us with her Great American Quilt Festival experiences. Carol, who has an art degree from the University of Wisconsin, shared many amusing anecdotes about the New York traffic, people, bus rides, and sightseeing. During her slide presentation, Carol told us a little about each quilt show winner. All of the quilts became more special when we learned about it's maker. The quilts are now on an international tour til 1989, after which their makers get them back.

Carol also showed 25 slides of the Fairfield State Banner quilts that were displayed in New York during the festival. These were made by quilt guild members from each state. Carol brought the Minnesota banner, made by several MQ members, for us to see. Great work ladies!

Finally, Carol shared her small signature quilt on which 41 of the 51 festival winners have signed. Congratulations to Carol who has made many new friends and had an experience of a lifetime. (Ask her about her snuff can cover medallions!)

The meeting then adjourned for refreshments.

GENERAL MEETING

General Meeting Jan. 9, 1987
First Methodist Church
South St. Paul

President Sue Stein began the meeting by recognizing the many guests present, one came all the way from Costa Rica.

The morning’s program was presented by four groups who offered our members opportunities to expand our knowledge and utilize our talents within the community. Marit Kucera, Heidi Pierson and Jan Meyers provided information on Art Wear "87", a series of events celebrating clothing as pieces of artwork. This celebration will be highlighted by a fashion show of art wear presented by 55 artists at Children's Theater on Apr. 8.

Another presentation was made by Suzanne Lacy of "Whisper Minnesota", a project celebrating the beauty of older women through art, education and performances. One of the highlights of the program will be a performance of a "Living Quilt" on May 10 in the IDS Center's Crystal Court.

The third presentation was made by Dorothy Stish telling us about the Dorothy Day Center, a program devoted to helping street people with their needs, specifically food, housing and medical assistance. Minnesota Quilters is assisting this program by sponsoring a group that is making quilts for some of the many beds at the center.

Amy Cordova and Jean Bay Wiley discussed the Los Madres Quilt Project they were involved with. A quilt designed by Amy and stitched by many women to honor the women of Central America. MQ members who worked on this beautiful quilt are Jean Bay Wiley, Maureen Heaney, and Vicki Stachura. This quilt is now being used as a backdrop for education people about human rights issues in Central America.

Los Madres Quilt

Finally, Carol Wagner discussed a quilt auction for "Make a Wish Minnesota" and Ann Degen told us about a quilt project for the Ronald McDonald House.

All of these projects can use volunteers.
So, we were all encouraged to expand our horizons and get involved in these community projects.

SHOW COMMITTEE

The show committee is saddened at the news of the unexpected death of one of its members, MARCIA T. SCHUSTER. Marcia was working with Gustavus food service on planning the meals for the show. She was an active member of the Deep Valley Quilters and was formerly director of the Blue Earth County Historical Society.
QUILT SHOW

Small Quilt Auction

Don't forget the Doll Quilt Auction. This year there will be two categories. One in which the bids will not go over $15 the other will have no limit. Of course, you will determine the category.

Also there will be two door prizes—one for each category. The number which will be posted on your quilt will be used for a drawing the night of the banquet. The more quilts you put in the better chance you have of winning a real nice prize.

Quilts can be any size up to 24" x 36". They can be turned in at each daytime meeting to Shirley Krantz or DyAnne Larew or at each night time meeting to Jackie Northrup or Margaret Ballinger, or you can mail them to me.

GENERAL MEETING

General Meeting Minutes
December 12, 1986

Our annual December Holiday meeting began with entertainment by harpist, Trudy Finden and Bonnie Ellis. In addition to some beautiful traditional music, they performed a quilting rendition of the Shoemaker Story.

Shirley Krantz, Princeton, continued the program with a workshop on "How to Begin A Mini-Quilt". She offered techniques from the design process through completion. She suggested that the colors used on small quilts should be of high contrast so that the design doesn't get lost. Another technique she uses in her quilts is to reduce the seam allowance to 1/8" after piecing to help eliminate bulk when quilting.

Shirley then commented a wonderful show of what seemed like hundreds of small quilts. The quilts were hung "clothesline style" around meeting room for all to examine after the presentation.

Minnesota Quilters has the opportunity to rent space in the area of Hwy 280 and Como Ave. This centrally located space would provide us with a large monthly meeting space for both the day and the evening meeting. Also a secure office space large enough for storage of the library, coffee pots, projector, quilt collection and the rest of our various belongings that are stored all over the area and carried to each meeting as needed. Also the many committee meetings could be held there. The building has ample parking and handicap accessibility. If we choose we can take 3 or 4 meetings a year "outstate". The Board of directors will be voting on this at the Feb. 6th meeting, if you have any comments or questions we would like to hear from you. Please call Sue 644-1478 or Ann 831-4145.

IN THE EYE OF THE BEHOLDER

Helen Kelley
Copyright 1987

My daughter lives in a house on the side of a wooded hill. On the deck outside her picture window is a bird feeder filled with seeds. A feeder dangles from her laundry pole, too. She has magnificent birds filling her yard. Hanging on a tree is a suet feeder that she devised. Two cake racks are hinged together with plastic trash bag ties and sandwiched between the tines of the racks is a slab of suet. Flocking pertly about her feeder are blue jays, cardinals, juncos and a variety of lovely woodpeckers with assorted red caps and barred wings. They take their turns daintily pecking at the suet.

She fashioned suet feeder for me and drove over to fasten it to the end of the dog run in my own backyard. Since the first day, it has been covered with birds, large and black, squabbling and grabbing. Their shaggy feathers ruffle as they push at each other. That's just my luck! With all of the beautiful birds in the world, I get grackles.

It's like the time my daughter called to tell me that her mountain ash tree was covered with magnificent grosbeaks. I rushed to the window to see the last of a tribe of starlings stripping my own ash tree. Surely, my life is dominated by tackiness!

A thought occurred to me this morning as I sat at the kitchen table watching the grackles outside the window. Maybe I am looking at them all wrong. Maybe, true, they are big and ugly, unpleasant, common birds, and maybe, if I looked at them, really looked at them the way I look at a quilt, maybe I would find that they are interesting. Maybe I would find, if I took the time to observe them, that their chattering says something to each other. Perhaps they have clever mannerisms, unique habits. Maybe, if I look closely through my binoculars, I will see that they have an attractive way of fanning their tails. Perhaps one is young and appealingly awkward. I must go back and look at them again.

When I first began to preach the Gospel of Quilting, I sermonized on the fact that all quilts are beautiful, things to be cherished. After all, quilts are a dying breed and even the most tattered are rare and wonderful. As I saw more and more quilts blossoming forth from antique stores, garage sales and attics, I realized that there are more quilts out there in Wonderland than I had first dared hope, and that some of them, quite honestly, are real dogs. Some, it seemed, are battered, carelessly made or absolutely tasteless. I became so sophisticated, quilt-wise, that I admitted that every quilt is not lovely, I became selective.

One day, I grew into another phase, which is what they tell me that growing girls do. Now, I realized that when I looked at a quilt, whether a beauty or a beast, that it had been made for a purpose. It was made in the midst of life by somebody and many times, with somebody. It was made a fabric that was chosen either for clothing or, lucky the quilter, specifically for the quilt. Someone had liked that fabric. Somebody has stitched her hours into that quilt. Someone has used it (or saved it, as the case might be.)

I have a quilt top that I am fond of showing people with the announcement that it is the most remarkable quilt top that I have ever seen. It was obvious from the start that the lady "couldn't do it", and yet she persevered until she "did it." One day, a lady looked at that old quilt top and she hugged it.

She said, "That looks like a quilt my mother would have made. On a gloomy day when we couldn't go outside, she would decide to make a quilt, and she would sit down joyfully and slap the pieces together, laughing all the time."

So, if you look carefully at those motley yarn ties or puckery seams or gawdy fabrics on scruffy old quilts, there just may be a story hidden there. Somebody made that quilt. Just maybe, albeit it may not be the sort of quilt that you and I would make, but it may be interesting to see.

As for my grackles, when I watch them carefully I may discover that when the sun shines, their heads turn royal blue. Maybe one will strut by my window in sassy bravado. After all, if I can't have love-birds and phoenix, maybe a grackle will do.
